Today's Assignment

Declutter The Livingroom

Right about now you should be enjoying the wide open spaces of a 'new to you' bedroom. Now lets work the same miracle in our livingroom.

This room is going to be a little more of a challenge. Because the whole family uses this room, you will need some cooperation in keeping it nice when you are finished your daily session.

This is another large part of the benefit in taking this course. For many of us a large part of the reason for our mess is that we, and the rest of the family don't incorporate regular maintenance or accountability for new messes. You know what happens... they pile up!

If you haven't, review the maintenance portion of the Spring Cleaning Tips for Mom ebook and put the principals into use in your bedroom and in the livingroom as you progress.

So, here we go.

Today, lets spend 20 minutes decluttering. If you need a refresher, you can review the declutter info in the Orientation section.

Set your timer for 15 minutes and GO! (or set it at 5 minute intervals giving yourself a small section or task for each - if you are adjusting your time for the kids, use your own time limit). Don't forget to check under the couch.

When the timer rings set it again for 5 minutes and clean up any messes that you have made during your decluttering session. Make the tough choices, put what ever you can into your give away and garbage boxes.

Put your boxes and baskets where they need to go, put anything away that you have taken out etc. Make it nice.

You may still have more decluttering to do when your time is up. You can use your catch up day 6 to work on it, or we will have a full catch up week during week 6. Or you can chip away at it a few minutes daily now that you are focused on your mission!

Or you can join our free Declutter Day group, a weekly reminder to help you stay focused on a regular decluttering session every week. It all adds up!

Remember that the more brutal you can be at this stage, the less that you will have look after for years to come – the nicer your room will look and the easier it will be to clean.

Less really is more.

Peace is in the open spaces.

Looking forward to seeing you tomorrow, let's take another step up!
